MORE CIVILIAN CANDIDATES. Others Designated by Secretary Proctor

When Secretary Proctor determined this spring to open the chances of civilians to get into the army it was his intention to select twenty-four young men of good standing and qualifications from civil life for appointment as second lieutenants. Twelve of them have already been selected and assigned to regiments, together a dozen non-commissioned officers who have been raised from the ranks. There now remain twelve places for civilians, and to fill them the Secretary has ordered another batch of applicants to appear before the same board that examined the others, consisting of Maja. Davis, MacArthur and Sanger. It was found that this board performed its duties so judiciously and fairly that it was ordered to continuously and the continuous that this board performed its duties so judiciously and fairly that it was ordered to continue on the duty of harrowing the souls of the young men who want to wear shoulder straps.

The board will in all probability pursue the same lines as in the other examination and it will get together in a few days to determine upon the new questions, which, of course, must differ from those asked the first batch, else there would be less competition and higher averages than are desired. They will be likely to hold the examination some time in August. THE NEW LIST. The new candidates are as follows: William

Pa braska; John P. Armstrong. Delaware; Geo. D. secured a high average, each failed in some one subject. They entered a protest against their being excluded from the list, on the ground their being excluded from the list, on the ground that the regulation providing for the appointment of candidates who obtained a general average over seventy was not amended until the day before the examination, when the Secretary issued a circular providing that those failing to obtain seventy in any one subject should not pass. On this account the four young men named are to be given another chance. Wallace is a relative of Gen. Lew Wallace of Indiana.

Mr. Moore comes from the National Guard of Illinois; Brooke is a first lieutenant of the third infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard; Cole is a member of the Missouri Guard and Short belongs to the first artillery, Ohio state troops.

STILL A SURPLUS.

There will be twelve selections made, and thus there will have been thirty-six appointments to the army this year from civil life and the ranks, an unusually large numbe. There will be no more non-commissioned officers examined. After these thirty-six are provided with posts there will still be a slight surplus of second lieutenancies, for the original plan was based on forty vacancies actually existing when the first orders were issued, and more are being created constantly.

BOOMING THE FAIR.

Are Doing. Reports have been received at the Treasury Department from the three special agents traveling in Europe as boomers of the world's retary Nettleton today appointed John J. S. fair, Messrs. COST OF INSPECTION The Building Inspector's Estimates for Office for Next Year. Building Inspector Entwisle today forwarde to the Commissioners the estimate of the smount required for the support of his office the coming fiscal year. The total amount he estimates necessary his office is $9,155, divided as follows: One inspector, $2,400; chief clerk and archi tect, $1,600; one assistant inspector of buildings, $1,200; one assistant inspector of buildings at $1,000; one inspector of elevators and fire escapes, $1,000; one clerk at $900; one messenger at $480; contingent expenses, $575. For the care of the District building he estimates that $3,008.50 will be necessary.

For repairs to public schools, $30,000; to police stations, $3,000; to fire engine houses, $3,500; for market houses, $1,500; for hay scales, $250; for Police Court, $800; for interior of District building, $500; total, $39,550. In conclusion, Mr. Entwisle says that the above estimates should not be reduced, as each estimate for repairs is as low as they can be placed to keep the buildings in a fair state o preservation.

THE FIGHT APPARENTLY WON. cess at Detroit.

DETROIT, MICH., August 5 .- With the drum beats of yesterday's parade still echoing through the city as post after post marches away the national encampment began today the work for which it has assembled. The members of the Washington committee begin the day which may decide the question of the location of the next encampment with some anxiety. There is every indication that their fight is won; still this morning on comparing notes it s found that no one can give any statement in figures of the real strength of Washington. The general impression that Washington will go through with a cheer and the general enthusiasm for Washington in the rank and file have given the committee its confidence more than any reliable count of votes, which has been quite impossible to make, as the matter has hardly received any consideration in the various meetings and caucuses of state delegations. THE STAR correspondent has run across a number of delegates who will vote for Lincoln, Neb., but not one who does not believe the encampment will go to Washington. IOWA GAINED FOR WASHINGTON.

The Washington invitation committee were active this morning. One effective piece of work was to bring the Iowa delegation around to Washington. The Iowans caucussed this morning and Senstor Manderson and Gov. Thayer of Nebraska made addresses to the delegation which almost won them for Lincoln. Messrs. E. B. Hay and Frank Hatton of the Washington committee were then admitted. Mr. Hay made a speech cordially inviting the veterans to come to the capital and dwelling with pathetic unction on all the points of interest to many of the old soldiers that Washington possesses. He spoke of the fact that the old soldiers are passing away and of the appropriateness of beginning the second quarter century of the Grand Army with a grand review such as signalized the beginning of its exist-

Some of the veterans were moved to tears As a result of this effort it was agreed that Iowa should vote for Washington.

The New York delegation also decided this morning in caucus to vote for Washington. The invitation committee having been noti fied this morning that they would be invited upon the floor of Beecher Hall, where the en-Washington prepared for that event. Chairman Douglass primed himself for a speech, their headquarters, bearing the silver plate invitation. They had to wait in the ante-room for some time while the opening proceedings were conducted. They could see through the door the gorgeously decorated platform, where Commander Veazey sat with ex-President layes and Govs. Hovey, Thayer and Oglesby.

THE COMMITTEE WAITING. The committee waited until nearly 1 o'clock in the ante-room. The encampment then took a recess for an hour. As the proceedings incidental to opening and organizing the encamp ment were not then completed, it seemed pro able that the resolution which will be offered by General Henderson of Iowa to admit the committee to the floor cannot be presented and acted upon until late in the afternoon.

When the committee is admitted Commis sioner Douglass will make a speech presenting the silver invitation and golden key to the encampment in the name of both the government of the District and of the people of the city, asking the Grand Army to order its next encampment to be held in Washington

It is not thought that the encampment will vote this evening on the question of the encampment. An hour may be fixed when the vote will be taken tomorrow.

In the proceedings this morning Nebraska gained a little prominence by presenting to the commander-in-chief, through Gen. Clarkson, a costly gavel of ivory and gold and a magnificent floral piece. Secretary Proctor and Gen. Batchelder left for New York today on the Cleopatra, the private car tendered him by the Pennsylvania road. The Secretary will go from New York The time of holding the encampment will not bout Commander-in-Chief Venzey's head-You are at liberty to say for me, if you want to, that I have made a bet of ten to one that Washington will get the encampment. I have tapped every delegate that has come around headquarters, and I know I am betting on a sure thing." Mr. R. A. Parke of the Washington commit tee, who has been figuring on the situation, told THE STAR this morning that the lowest estimate made for Washington was 480 votes on the first ballot, which would be an effective majority of the votes to be cast. The anxiety referred to is more the result of lack of information of the most definite character than any sign of change of sentiment. COL. LINCOLN'S WITHDRAWAL From the committee's point of view the situ-ation is, in fact, brighter than ever before on account of the announcement made in this morning's papers here of the withdrawal of Col. C. nly point seriously urged by any one against

Gen. W. W. Dudley, who has been active at headquarters in the interest of Washington, estimates that four-fifths of the delegates will estimates that four-fifths of the delegates will vote at the start for Washington. Corporal Tanner's figures agree with this estimate.

Adjutant General Goulding said to The Star this morning that there are about 1,100 mem-this morning that there are about 1,100 members in the encampment who have a vote in naming the place of meeting. Of these about 800 are in Detroit at present. He said: "I have had no conference on the subject and so cannot say officially what the encampment will do, but speaking for myself I can say it is evident that the feeling of the soldiers is in favor of Washington."

All the newspaper men reporting the encampment have been so impressed with the belief that Washington will be the chosen place, that they have practically stopped writing the Associated Press, who travels about reporting conventions, told THE STAR today that he has lately attended several large state conventions and is traveling all the time. He had observed everywhere that the sentiment is in favor of Washington. He said that in travel-portunity of judging how such things turn out, and it is evident that she has no chance whatever.

South Dakota is strongly in favor of the capital city and will so cast its vote in the encampment. CONFERENCE ON COL. LINCOL

It was settled late last night that Col. Chas. P. Lincoln would not be a candidate for the long conference in his room at the Russell House, and after midnight be signed a letter addressed to Chairman Douglass announcing that he would not be a candidate Col. Lincoln in his letter said that he was informed that his candidacy was being urged as argument against giving Washington the encampment, on the ground that the city was not entitled to both the highest office and the honor of welcoming the next encampment. He says that he has always favored Washington for 1892 and that he would not desire his candidacy to afford the slightest ground for an argument against the capital Chairman Douglass has written a letter to Col. Lincoln expressing the committee's appreciation of the good will and magnanimity hown by Col. Lincoln's action.

This action of Col. Lincoln cost him something of a struggle. He and his friends had expressed absolute confidence that he would be chosen, and, from his point of view, he has surrendered an honor which a Grand Army man would consider one of the highest that could be bestowed upon him. SOME VETERANS' VIEWS.

Vermont said: "We all want to go to Washington. The only thing that could prompt the encampment to name Lincoln as the place of meeting in 1892 would be the desire to accept a them. The arguments in favor of service penthe memories associated with that city." One old soldier from the west said: "Thouands of us are planning to go to Washington to go while there is a comrade in the presidential chair to greet us and be greeted by us. The possibility exists that the next president will not be a member of the Grand Army and we want to go in 1892." The members of the Washington committee on invitation are all warm in their praises of the hospitality shown them by Mr. R. A. Parke, one of their number, who, as southeastern passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad. took charge of the party on the journey from Washington to Detroit. He not only entertained the committee sumptuously on the road, but made them his guests at Watkins Glen and Niagara Falls, where carriages were provided. No "personally conducted" tour ever did up these resorts more thoroughly than did Mr.

The Potomac Relief Corps tendered a recep tion to Miss Clara Barton last evening from 6 to 10 o'clock. There was a steady stream of callers throughout those hours. Among those who called were the members of the Washington invitation committee. The department relief corps spent last evening in making calls on the members of various relief corps who are in Detroit. The delegates of the Potomac and department relief corps attended the national convention of relief corps today. While the parade was passing the headquarters of the Washing-ton committee yesterday, and it took four hours for it to pass, a lively demonstration was kept up. Mr. Hege, Mr. Parke and othe nembers of the committee distributed from veterans, and occasionally scattered the contents of a box of cigars through the crowd.

ITS SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

DETROIT, August 5.—The twenty-fifth a to make the building attractive had been done in the decorations which adorned the interior in emblematic order. At the head of the hall over the platform over the platform, was a large G. A. R. badge, flanked on either kide by American flags, and in the rear the grand seal of the United States, also set between flags. From the ceiling hung clusters of the flags of all the republies in the world. The side walls numerous flags and other decorations. At the bottom of each truss were clusters of incan-descent lamps, which, when lighted, will give rare effect to the interior. Despite the immensity of the hall it was crowded to its utmost scating capacity by the multitude of veterans attracted by the momentmultitude of veterans attracted by the moment-ous questions to be settled at this encampment of the order. It was fully understood that the race question might be precipitated in the de-liberations at any moment and become the subject of acrimonious discussion, and this im-pending problem, together with the projected revision of the constitution, combined to heighten the general interest in the proceed-ings.

A few minutes before the bour of opening Gen. Veazey and his staff entered the hall and were escorted to the grand stand. The appear-ance of the commander-in-chief was the signal for generous applause, and a minute later the air in harmony with the martial scene.

Rapping the assemblage to order the commander-in-chief announced the formal opening of the twenty-fifth annual encampment of the G. A. R. and directed the adjutant general to

GEN. VEAZEY'S ADDRESS. The opening address of the commander-in chief was listened to in rapt attention by the ssembled veterans. Gen. Veazey said: "Comrades: This is the silver anniversary of a birth, not of a wedding. The wedding oc-curred when the bridegrooms, the youth of the land, enlisted in its defense. Abraham Lincoln celebrated the marriage nuptials. Co-lumbia was the bride; her vesture was the nation's flag. The pledge to re-establish that flag over the domain of secession was the price of her hand. When the pledge was grandly re-that they have practically stopped writing about the matter, assuming it to be a question practically settled.

One man here, an experienced reporter of the Associated Press, who travels about reporting conventions, told The Star today that he Army of the Republic, an offspring worthy of its royal parentage.

He then remarked: "Lincoln is out of the race. I know it because I have constant opportunity of independent of the constant opportunity of independent on the constant of the present on the question, and that they were almost a unit for Washington.

He then remarked: "Lincoln is out of the present of the constant opportunity of independent on the constant opportunity of independent opportunity of inde diminished but quickened their pride of their service, not quenched but intensified the ardor of their love of the flag and all it represents, not dulled but enlivened the soldierly spirit which they exhibited in the old heroit days. Any charge to the contrary is an insult to the veterans as a class and as individuals." THE COLOR LINE AND THE SOUTH

After referring pathetically to the death dur ing the past year of Sherman, Porter, Hamlin office of commander-in-chief. There was a Devens, Tobin and other honored members of the order, the commander-in-chief continued The present administration encountered the same disturbances in the Department of Louisiana and Mississippi that had troubled my predecessors. From various sources of information that have been accessible to me I believe that a large majority of both white and colored comrades in the Department of Louisiana and Mississippi are strong in the con-viction that it would be for the best in-terests of all individually and of their posts and of the order to have a separate department in Louisiana and some of the other gulf states made up of such posts as may apply to come into it and having con-current jurisdiction with the departments al-ready established in such states; concurrent in respect to the chartening and mustering of posts, but each department having exclusive jurisdiction over the posts which it may re-ceive. My best judgment after a year of painstaking investigation is that it would be wise to confer the authority upon my successor to create such a department. He may neither find it necessary nor think it best to exercise the "Comrades, our order has reached its highwater mark neither in numbers nor in glory and power. In cultivating fraternity and other organizations. But there is another basic principle of our order which is, in a sense at principle of our order which is, in a sense at least, peculiar to it—it is the broad principle of loyalty.

"Here we provoke criticism and on the ground that there is no disloyalty now. True, no class or section is engaged in disloyal acts, but, as is well known, there are men here and there throughout the land who adhere to the pernicious doctrine that secession by a state is a right and therefore resistance to attempted coercion is not disloyalty or rebellion. The iron heel of Andrew Jackson crushed the first threats of overt action based on this doctrine. When, in the next instance, the threat was carried into effect it required the scourge of war and rivers of blood to suppress it. A third effort is not likely to appear again in the south, because it is not conceivable how the interests of that section can be so advantageously situated as they are within the Union. But the doctrine permeates the political literature of the country. The seed took deep root in the disciples of Calhoun and others who labored to plant it. As our country extends its borders and sections become antagonistic in interest, who can As our country extends its borders and sections become antagonistic in interest, who can say that another effort may not be made somewhere? So long as this danger exists, however remotely, the work of the G. A. R. is not finished. No organization since the war has done so much for the country, especially in laying deep the foundations of future security as the G. A. R. It appeals to every loyal hand that drew a blade or carried a musket. Therefore no Union soldier has done his full duty as a citizen unless he has given the order the benefit of his comradeship in it. In closing, I desire to of his comradeship in it. In closing, I desire to renew the expression of gratitude which I made a year ago, for the great honor that you conferred upon me.

"Having intended to wrong no one, and having received no affront from any one, I say to one and all, from the deepest recesses of my heart, I thank you and God bless you."

The declaration of the commander-in-chie a decided sensation. It was hardly expected that he would so openly favor the separation of the races, and whites of Louisiana and Missis-sippi were overjoyed at his decisive recom-mendations.

In his annual report Quartermaster Gen and the financial future of the order was parently a bright one.

Inspector General J. W. Burst, in his repo complained of the inadequate facilities afford his department to perform its duties, because of the changes in the date for inspection of stantly made by the national encampment, had been able to secure reports of inspect from only a part of the posts, but such as it have inspected were in good condition.
